LET 'ER BUCK!

ROUND-UP YARNS AND SIDE LIGHTS

Mere Boy Aspires.

John Tyacke, an 18 year old Pasco buckaroo, is not only a daring aspirant for the saddle, but has the confidence of a champion.

Buckaroo Comes Back.

C. A. Keith, of Wallula, had not "taken the rough off" of a real bad one for a long time until the tryout season. He rode the worst of the lot, "scratched him" and believes he is championship timber.

Sticks Long Tom.

Frank Morrison of John Day, is entered in practically all the contests of the Round-up and after making a close ride on Long Tom, in the try-out, declares that he can ride him straight up.

Boy Rides Some.

Charles Myers, a 20 year old strawberry blond from Burns, Ore., was one of those who "rode some" during the bucking tryout season, and is confident of his ability to "scratch" anything the judges may require him to ride.

California Winner Here.

John Dobbins is almost as broad as he is long, but that did not prevent him from making spectacular rides on the worst buckers in the try-out. He won second money at Sacramento and declares that he will give them a ride for their money in the finals.

Printer Scratches 'Em.

"Billy" Nevius, a typ-sticker of more or less prominence along the Pacific coast, who "fans 'em out" for the pleasure it affords him, expects to decorate the next print shop he works in with the $250 prize saddle which will go to the best broncho buster.

Red Contestant Confident.

Wolfe McDougal, a full blood Shoshone Indian of Pocatello, Ida., has just returned from the California state fair at Sacramento where he won honors with his lasso and is confident of carrying away prizes in the bulldogging, bucking and roping contests.

Two Rope Champs.

C. A. Byers of Bliss, Oklahoma, who won the fancy roping championship at the Rodeo at Los Angeles and A. D. (Tex) McCleod of Gonzales, Texas, who won the roping championship at the Stampede at Calgary, are two performers brought here by the Round-up association as special attractions, who expect to win further honors in the contests and issue a challenge to any two ropers in the world. McCleod won first prize in the bucking contest at Elko, Nev., and first prize in the wild horse race at Cheyenne Frontier.
